Dedication

Thomas R. Smyth, Assistant Headmaster, has done a great deal to keep Cambridge Fundamental High School going. Without his hard work and genuine concern, our school could not maintain the respect for learning and the high standards which make us proud. We, the class of 1979, would like to show our appreciation by dedicating our yearbook to him.

Introduction

Cambridge Fundamental High School was founded in 1976 to offer students in Cambridge a more structured school with discipline and a basic academic curriculum.

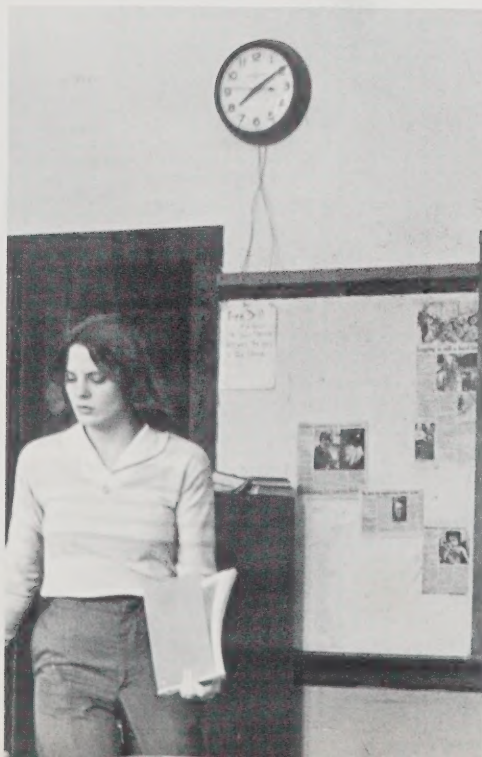

The first year was a test to see if the school community could live up to its expectations. With the support of loyal, concerned parents, teachers and members of the school committee, the school was able to open for another year and is still going two years later with full enrollment.

Our school has received a lot of publicity because it is part of the new "back-to-basics" movement that is spreading across the country. Newspaper articles and the NBC special in particular, spotlighted C.F.H.S. and drew curiosity, as well as recognition from the public.

At Cambridge Fundamental High School the students are offered a good foundation in the basic academic disciplines and skills needed in the working world. Most importantly, students are encouraged to be courteous, respectful and responsible young adults. In later years we will be proud to say that we were taught these skills and attitudes at this school.
